PCSL'S CHILDREN

LEARNING THE 'GOOD' STUFF BY JUNE GUMZ

At about 10:45 a.m. each Sunday morning the children of PCSL start to ascend the stairs to their area. Awaiting them at the top are cheerful teachers and pleasant surroundings geared to their levels. Imagine how their lives are improved by learning SOM principles before the influences of advertising, news and society try to program them in other ways. Learning that they are intelligent, capable, good and important is crucial to their sense of well-being. Obviously children are responding well because the number of children participating in the program continues to grow. Treatment works.

During quiet times of our Sunday services I have seen some people cringe at the sounds of the children above. I have the opposite reaction. The image of children enjoying themselves learning the 'good' stuff about themselves, and their universe, gives me a sense that all's right with the world. I am grateful for the reminder of their youthful exuberance. As Larry says, we have choices about how we react to life.

For many years, Lexy Dillon has organized, taught and grown our youth program. Angelica Jackson will be taking over that position, but Lexy will still participate. Angelica grew up in SOM and has a feel for the principles from a kid's point of view. Lexy could still use some folks to help with the youngest of our children on Sunday mornings. There is a meeting of the youth teachers and helpers once a month, so if you have an interest contact Angelica or Lexy to find out when and where. Let's support our youth and their guides.

Children of all ages...sharing, playing, learning, loving.

SPIRITUAL LEADER’S MESSAGE

100,000,000 TRANSFORMATIONS BY REV. LARRY KING

I just attended the annual convention of Science of Mind Ministers and I have wonderful news. The two “halves” of Science of Mind are now back together. Many years ago, while Ernest Holmes was still alive, Religious Science split into two parts. Up until two weeks ago, there was “United Centers For Spiritual Living” and “International Centers for Spiritual Living.” We were separate non-profit organizations with separate Churches and Centers, different Science of Mind classes and so on.

How silly! We teach the Unity of all life! We stand for oneness!

This did not go without notice. At the urging of our Youth Leaders (the two organizations have had combined “Youth Camps” for many years) we glued things back together.

This year’s convention was the final step of this several-year effort. Now combined, we are simply “Centers for Spiritual Living.” You can research the combined organization and watch a short speech by our Spiritual Leader, Rev. Dr. Kenn Gordon, on the web at www.csl.org.

Here are a few of the facts about this new organization:

- We have over 450 member Centers and Churches (like ours)
- We have Centers in more than 30 countries, worldwide
- Our headquarters office in Golden, Colorado, has a lovely campus, paid for through contributions from all our local Centers.
- After the consolidation settles down, our mission is to touch 100 million people

Yes, you read that last bit correctly: We plan to touch 100 million people through the powerful teachings of the Science of Mind. That figures out to about 200,000 people per existing Center.

It sounds like a lot of people—a lot of personal commitment to getting the word out. I know we’re up for it, though! The Portland Metropolitan area has over 2.5 million people. There’s already a local audience for this transformative teaching. It also doesn’t mean that we have to fit them into our Center (although we can certainly get a bigger Center). In the 21st Century we have so many options for reaching out to people.

Our podcasts and my blog (www.pcsl.us/blog) are already attracting thousands of people, many whom have never physically attended the Center. Already we’ve made significant progress in touching people with Ernest Holmes’ teachings. This life-changing message of Power and Love is changing the world. You are part of something so much bigger than what you can see.

But isn’t that always the case with God?

Continue to enjoy our Center and its many offerings of classes, events and programs. Invite a friend to join us on Sunday or to attend an event. Know that you play a huge part in transforming the world by touching 100,000,000 lives!

With love, of course.

NANCY ASHLEY – Seeing the Best in Others

Many Sunday mornings, Nancy Ashley starts the PCSL services with her wit and elegance. Like Rev. Sharon, she can make us want to listen to announcements, applaud musicians before they even perform and let us know who is doing what that particular day. It is a gift and Nancy has it. Her sense of style puts those of us in jeans and casual wear to shame.

Nancy's sister introduced her to Louise Hay and the Science of Mind magazine. The book, Conversations with God, which she received in 1996, put her on the path to becoming a religious scientist. When her husband died in 2002 she was determined to find a spiritual home. She became a member of the 'Sandy Bunch' of PCORS (one of our center's former incarnations). Since that time there is almost no position Nancy hasn't held. Besides being a CORE Council member, practitioner, retreat planner, and mistress of ceremonies, she also founded and co-leads the Transcendence group. Multitalented.

Nancy's stint as a drug and alcohol counselor for Clackamas County has just come to an end. Her plans for retirement are many, but not set in stone. "Primarily retirement means freedom." Some of the loose plans she has for the future are meditating more, a bit of yoga, possibly becoming a CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocate) and admiring husband, Ed Gray's, Japanese garden and landscaping project. Other activities she plans to pursue are reading, exercising, crocheting and playing the recorder and keyboard. Asilomar and family visits fit in there somewhere.

When asked what she would like us to know about her, Nancy responded that "ideas of SOM and being the love and light of God, made manifest in my world, seeing the best in others works for me."
